

LECTURER, QUANTITATIVE METHODS IN PSYCHOLOGY. The Department of Psychology at the University of Georgia (www.uga.edu/psychology) is seeking to fill a Lecturer position beginning fall 2022. This position is a nine-month position that is renewable and promotable within the Lecturer track at UGA.

A Ph.D. in Psychology or a related field is required. The successful candidate will be expected to cover a variety of core undergraduate courses, including quantitative methods (e.g., undergraduate research methods and statistics) and some graduate courses.

The University of Georgia (UGA), a land-grant and sea-grant university with statewide commitments and responsibilities, is the state's oldest, most comprehensive, and most diversified institution of higher education (<https://www.uga.edu/>). UGA is currently ranked among the top 15 public universities in U.S. News & World Report. The University's main campus is located in Athens, approximately 65 miles northeast of Atlanta, with extended campuses in Atlanta, Griffin, Gwinnett, and Tifton. UGA was founded in 1785 by the Georgia General Assembly as the first state-chartered University in the country. UGA employs approximately 1,800 full-time instructional faculty and more than 7,700 full-time staff. The University's enrollment exceeds 39,000 students including over 30,000 undergraduates and over 9,000 graduate and professional students. Academic programs reside in 18 schools and colleges, as well as a medical partnership with Augusta University housed on the UGA Health Sciences Campus in Athens.

The Franklin College of Arts and Sciences, its many units, and the University of Georgia are committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and students, and sustaining a work and learning environment that is inclusive. Women, people from historically excluded groups, and people with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Candidates should apply at <https://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/248833> and include a curriculum vitae; statement of teaching experience and interests; and a statement that addresses past, current, or potential future contributions to diversity and inclusion. Candidates will be asked to provide the names and email for three references who can provide letters of recommendation. The letters will be requested later in the process from the individuals you identify here. All applications received by April 18, 2022 will receive full consideration. Review will continue until the position is filled.

The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status. Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu).